As far as I can see, there's Jomres first and daylight second in the online booking portal range. Excellent support built on a massive code base that works, works, works. I don't want to gush, but this is an example of stable code that is highly configurable. Vince seems to have talked to the accommodation industry and every possible permutation of accommodation types and tariff configurations has been considered and included. Don't think that you can install it before lunch and be on the golf course by 2, there's a bit to learn but when it's al done and dusted, you'll find yourself with a booking engine that your clients will find a breeze to administer. Thoroughly recommended!
